Strikes and shutdowns kept nearly 215,000 away from their jobs today as reconversion barriers grew between workers and manufacturers, with the chief issue labor's demand that high wartime take-home pay be maintained.

In Detroit, where an estimated 84,000 workers were idle in 75 plants, the powerful CIO United Automobile Workers Union challenged the industry's "Big Three" to come out and fight or accede to a demand for a 30 per cent pay increase.

The UAW-CIO, claiming 1,250,000 members, warned General Motors and the Chrysler Corp. to grant the wage boost immediately or feel the brunt of the union's newly-devised "secret weapon"—a concentrated system-wide strike against one manufacturer.

The Ford Motor Co. was served with notice that it might be selected to initiate the UAW's new strike strategy when union officials scheduled a meeting of Ford local 29 to ask permission for a National Labor Relations Board strike vote.

10 Plants Closed

Some 50,000 Ford employees, 40,000 in Detroit and 10,000 in branch plants, already were idle. Production of 1946 models was halted and work suspended in 10 plants when the flow of parts was cut off by a strike at the Kelsey-Hayes Wheel Co., a Ford supplier.

The Kelsey-Hayes strikers, totaling some 4,500, walked out August 23 to protest the discharge of four union stewards. The strike has continued in defiance of the parent Auto Workers Union, which appointed an administrator over the local.

May Join Walkout

Another 10,000 Windsor workers discussed the possibility of striking in sympathy with the Ford workers.

Other major Detroit plants paralyzed by work stoppages included the Hudson Motor Car Co., with 6,500 out, and the Murray Corp., with 3,100 idle.

Labor's dissatisfaction with the handling of reconversion was (Continued on Page Two)

Togo Joins Parade Of "Innocents"

First And Last War Chief Says Sole Purpose Was To Work For Peace

TOKYO, Sept. 17—Shigenori Togo, Japan's first and last foreign minister of the Pacific war, said today that he entered the Tojo government in October 1941, only on the understanding that it would work for peace.

Togo, No. 2 on Gen. Douglas MacArthur's list of war criminals, defended his conduct in Japan's war cabinets in a written statement from his sickbed at his home in Tokyo. He was suffering from a heart ailment.

He said Gen. Hideko Tojo, then premier, gave him assurances that the government would do its part to conclude negotiations with the United States on "reasonable terms."

Members of Togo's family said he sent Saburo Kurusu to Washington as a peace negotiator because he thought the United States would understand Japan's viewpoint and a compromise would be possible.

They said Togo did not know in advance of the plans for the sneak attack on Pearl Harbor. Togo was (Continued on Page Two)

Kramer Faces British Court For Atrocities—19 Women Face Cruelty Charges

BULLETIN
LUENEBURG, Sept. 17—Josef Kramer, "The Beast of Belsen," lost the first round in his fight for life today when a British military court refused his plea to be tried separately from 45 other Germans accused of committing atrocities at the Belsen and Auschwitz concentration camps.

LUENEBURG, Sept. 17—Josef Kramer, "The Beast of Belsen," and 45 other Germans went on trial before a British military court today on charges of committing atrocities at the notorious Belsen concentration camp.

Nineteen women were among the defendants in the first mass trial of war criminals by the British. They were brought to justice in a converted gymnasium.

The Germans were driven to court through streets lined with staring and impassive crowds of their countrymen. They rode in three-ton trucks escorted by two armored cars.

The streets through which the procession passed had been cleared of all other vehicles. Each intersection was guarded by German police and British military police.

2 DAIRY TRUCKS IN ACCIDENTS; ONE MAN HURT

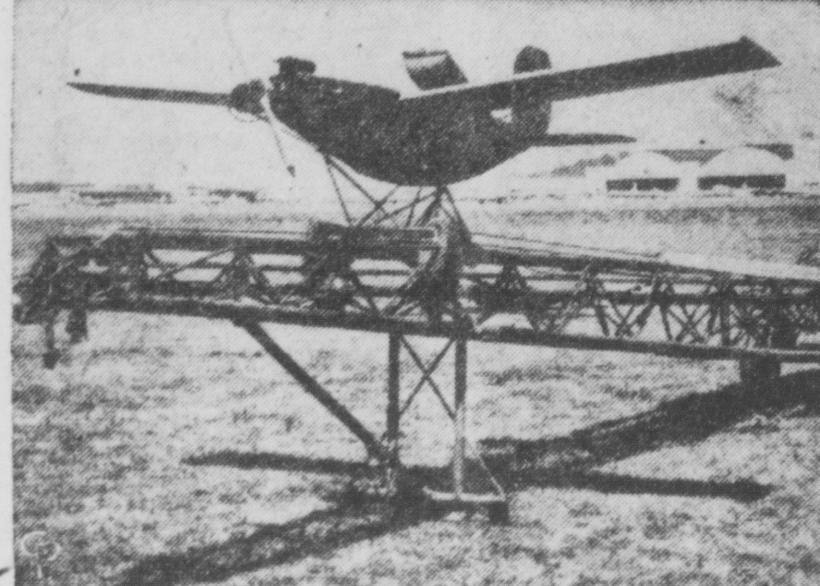

Two dairy trucks were involved in wrecks over the week end, but only one person was injured.

Julius Severs, 21, 335 West Ohio street, suffered bruises and shock, when the Pickaway Dairy truck he was driving was struck by an N. & W. freight train at the West Mill street crossing 5 p. m. Saturday, police reported. The truck was demolished.

Milk and eggs were scattered over the cornfield, but no one was injured when a truck, driven by Paul Elliot, route 4, Circleville, struck a car, driven by Vivian Bell of Akron, on route 22 at the Dublin hill road Sunday at 1:15 p. m.

Mr. Severs is now in Berger hospital. R. Terry was the engineer and R. T. Wessler, the conductor, on the freight.

Radio-Controlled Target Plane

THE "restricted" Id is lifted from one of the Army's most ingenious training devices—the radio-controlled, pilotless target airplane developed by the Air Technical Service Command. Able to fly 100 to 200 miles per hour at 3,000 feet, the plane is the result of eight years of intensive research work by Lt. Col. Chester O. French, Jr. Aerial gunners and anti-aircraft personnel used the radio airplane in their training programs in this country and aboard combatant ships. This is an ATSC photograph.

World's End Friday To Be Like Atom Blast, Pastor, Flock Believe

PASADENA, Cal., Sept. 17—The Rev. Charles G. Long and his flock of 30 faithful faked and prayed today as they waited for the end of the world Friday.

"Laugh and scoff, if you wish," the Rev. Mr. Long, a retired missionary said. "The end will be Friday—and in a manner similar to the explosion of an atomic bomb."

Long reasoned that the world must end this coming Friday since it did not end last Friday.

The faithful sat about the minister's living room—elderly women with scarfs around their heads, a few middle-aged men, a boy of 15 and a handful of children who played in the middle of the floor while their elders prayed. They began their prayers Sunday.

"Seven years ago," Long said, "I had a vision. I was lying in bed at 5 a. m. when a large blackboard was set before me. A luminous arm stretched out from the right side of the black board and wrote the number 610 three times."

"Under the first set of digits the arm wrote 1260; under the second 1290 and under the third, 1335."

Then the arm added up each of the three columns of numbers, the ministers said.

"The arm did all the addition. Then a still, small voice explained that the sum of the first, 1870, marked the end of papal supremacy."

"The total of the second, 1900, was the beginning of the 20th century."

"The total of the last, 1945, is the last year of this sin-cursed and blood-thirsty world—when Christ shall appear to save his own."

RAMSPECK SAYS VETERANS NOT BEING SLIGHTED

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17—Growing complaints that veterans are being slighted in government employment were dismissed by Chairman Robert Ramspeck, D., Ga., of the house civil service committee today as due largely to partisan politics.

"As far as I can tell," Ramspeck said, "the veteran is getting the break to which he is entitled under the veterans preference act."

Ramspeck put in the political category a bill by Rep. Edward H. Rees, R., Kans., that would grant an absolute preference to former servicemen in government layoffs, but said Rees' bill would get full consideration of his committee.

Rees charged that civil service is ignoring both the letter and spirit of the veterans preference act, which allots to veterans a five to ten point preference on examinations and which also calls for favored treatment for veterans in cut-backs.

Veterans' groups have also been critical of government employment practices. The Veterans of Foreign Wars is considering a blast at civil service for allegedly allowing the release of veterans in permanent but low-grade positions while war-service appointees hold on in higher brackets.

SOUTHERN GALE REGAINS FORCE FOR NEW BLOW

Hurricane Moves Northward; $60,000,000 Damage Trail Left In Florida

THREE STATES IN PATH

Southland Takes Worst Battering Experienced In 19 Years

CHARLESTON, S. C., Sept. 17—Winds of gale force whipped the beaches of Georgia and the Carolinas today as the hurricane which killed two and caused $60,000,000 damage tearing through Florida renewed its force at sea for another surge inland.

Hurricane warnings were up between Brunswick, Ga., and Cape Hatteras, N. C., as the hurricane—worst since 1926—raced northward at 15 miles an hour. The center was about 40 miles off Brunswick today and the weather bureau said it would probably skirt the Georgia coast to strike with full fury near here.

Storm warnings were flying as far north as the Virginia capes. Less than 250 miles from the New Jersey resort coast, focal point of devastating, but milder storms in recent years. Small craft warnings were hoisted as far north as Block Island, Conn. Rains and rising winds were predicted for the whole Atlantic coast today.

The three southern states were warned to expect high winds and abnormal tides even before a probable inland swerve. Gusts up to 53 miles an hour were felt at Brunswick.

Wake Of Destruction

The hurricane left a wake of destruction in Florida. It was the worst battering that state had taken from a tropical storm in 19 years. At its height three hurricane-proof hangars at the Richmond, Fla., naval base collapsed and caught fire.

Naval officers said damages would reach $40,000,000. Twenty-five Navy blimps, 213 naval planes and 153 civilian planes were destroyed. Harry Schultz, the base's civilian fire chief, died in the fires. His charred body was found as the storm roared away to cut a wide swath through the state's citrus belt.

The avocado crop was hardest hit. Growers estimated crop damage would exceed $500,000. There was no estimate of other property damage. More than 1,000 were made homeless at Homestead, the town took the greatest licking from winds which reached velocity of 143 miles an hour.

DO NOT TRUST JAPAN, MARINE HERO WARNS U. S.

TOKYO, Sept. 17—Lt. Col. James P. Devereux, Marine defender of Wake Island, was stunned by modern warfare's sweeping transformation during his imprisonment—especially by the total devastation which American B-29's left behind them.

Devereux, in an interview, said that he had heard of the mighty Superfortresses while in prison, and had witnessed raids on Shanghai and damage in Osaka, but he didn't realize the extent of B-29 destruction until after he had been released from prison and passed through shattered areas.

The thin, sparse-haired Leatherneck commander warned fellow Americans that they must stay on the alert to prevent another Pearl Harbor, and he called the Japanese present bowing-and-scraping attitude a planned attempt to regain American confidence.

"We don't want to forget the true character of the Japanese," Devereux said.

The modest little Marine—who weighed only 135 pounds in the days when he ate regularly—said, "there was never any doubt in my mind about the outcome of the war, but I didn't think it would last as long as it did."

Devereux's Family To Meet Him

"PADDY" Devereux, 11-year-old son of Lt. Col. James Devereux, gallant defender of Wake Island who has just been liberated from a Jap prison camp, is shown with his grandparents, Col. and Mrs. John Welch, in Pittsburgh as the trio stopped over on their trip from their home at Butler, Pa., to Washington, D. C., where they will welcome the Marine hero. The Wake Island leader is being flown from his northwestern Hokkaido prison camp to Tokyo, from where he will be brought back to the United States.

Solons Turn Attention To Touchy Problem Of Homecoming for Joes

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17—Both the house and senate focussed their attention today on the politically-explosive problem of speeding demobilization of the armed forces.

Bombarded by demobilization complaints and protests against continuation of the draft, Democrats and Republicans alike were aware that steps they take now may be felt in next year's congressional elections. That fact is adding a note of urgency to their natural desire to see G. I. Joe back in civvies as soon as possible.

In the house, debate got under way on a measure to build up a sizeable peacetime army through more attractive financial inducements to voluntary recruits. The

TAX RELIEF BY NOVEMBER PLAN

Congress Expected To Give Some Relief To Business And Individuals

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17—The house ways and means committee wants a 1946 tax relief bill enacted by Nov. 1.

The deadline was set by circumstances—the necessity of giving the treasury adequate notice for preparing new forms.

Although taxpayers have been warned not to expect substantial reductions, congress is expected to approve some relief for both individuals and corporations.

Chairman Robert L. Doughton, D., N. C., has announced that his ways and means committee had voted to begin consideration of a "short" tax bill as soon as possible. He said he hoped it could dispose (Continued on Page Two)

PRESIDENT BACK AT DESK AFTER BRIEF VACATION

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17—President Truman returned to his desk and pressing matters of state today after a restful weekend at his Missouri home.

The President planned to meet during the day with his top congressional lieutenants and to study other problems awaiting his attention. Among them are the critical automotive labor strife, the choice of a supreme court justice to succeed Owen J. Roberts and the expected changes in high war department posts.

Mr. Truman left for Missouri by plane Friday afternoon and returned to the capital at 7:50 p. m. (EWT) last night. Mrs. Truman and their daughter, Margaret, remained at the "Summer White House" in Independence.

Buckeyes To Be Sent To U. S. Instead Of Japan; Others To Leave Pacific

TOKYO, Sept. 17—Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced today that the occupation of Japan was proceeding so smoothly that all "citizen soldiers" in the Pacific probably can be demobilized within six months, leaving the garrisoning of the enemy homeland to 200,000 regular Army troops.

By using the Japanese governmental structure, he said, he was enforcing the surrender terms with only a small fraction of the millions of men, billions of dollars and years of time that would have been necessary if an Allied military tary government had been established.

"Within six months," he said in a formal statement, "the occupational force—unless unseen factors arise—will probably number not more than 200,000 men."

This size probably is within the framework of our projected regular establishment and will permit the complete demobilization of our citizen Pacific forces which fought so long and so nobly through to victory.

"Once Japan is disarmed, this force will be sufficiently strong to insure our will."

Future To Be Decided

MacArthur said Japan's future political and governmental structure—involving the fate of Emperor Hirohito as temporal ruler of Japan—on both a national and international plane would be decided later upon the "highest diplomatic level of the United Nations."

Other developments in the occupation:

1.—Japanese newspapers told their readers of Japanese atrocities in the Philippines for the first time.

2.—MacArthur's headquarters established a super-propaganda agency to help re-educate the Japanese people through the press, radio, motion pictures and schools.

Two More Surrender

3.—Japan surrendered the last two members of her "Pearl Harbor" cabinet still at large to occupation authorities for trial as war criminals.

4.—Lt. Gen. Yoshiye Shirokura, former chief of Gendarmarie in Tokyo and North China shot and killed himself in Ichimiya village, Aichi prefecture.

5.—MacArthur announced that the 31st (Dixie), 37th (Buckeye) and 38th (Cyclone) divisions now in the Philippines will be returned to the United States at an early (Continued on Page Two)

By using the Japanese governmental structure, he said, he was enforcing the surrender terms with only a small fraction of the millions of men, billions of dollars and years of time that would have been necessary if an Allied military government had been established.

"Within six months," he said in a formal statement, "the occupational force—unless unseen factors arise—will probably number not more than 200,000 men."

"This size probably is within the framework of our projected regular establishment and will permit the complete demobilization of our citizen Pacific forces which fought so long and so nobly through to victory."

"Once Japan is disarmed, this force will be sufficiently strong to insure our will."

Future To Be Decided

MacArthur said Japan's future political and governmental structure—involving the fate of Emperor Hirohito as temporal ruler of Japan—on both a national and international plane would be decided later upon the "highest diplomatic level of the United Nations."

Other developments in the occupation:

1.—Japanese newspapers told their readers of Japanese atrocities in the Philippines for the first time.

2.—MacArthur's headquarters established a super-propaganda agency to help re-educate the Japanese people through the press, radio, motion pictures and schools.

Two More Surrender

3.—Japan surrendered the last two members of her "Pearl Harbor" cabinet still at large to occupation authorities for trial as war criminals.

4.—Lt. Gen. Yoshio Shirokura, former chief of Gendarmarie in Tokyo and North China shot and killed himself in Ichimiya village, Aichi prefecture.

5.—MacArthur announced that the 31st (Dixie), 37th (Buckeye) and 38th (Cyclone) divisions now in the Philippines will be returned to the United States at an early (Continued on Page Two)

PEARL HARBOR INVESTIGATORS MEET THIS WEEK

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17—The preliminary phase of the congressional inquiry into the Pearl Harbor disaster will get under way this week when members of the 10-man joint committee meet to select a counsel and chart the course of their investigation.

Former Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes of the supreme court and Hugh Fulton, former counsel for the senate war investigating committee, have been mentioned as possibilities to head the committee's legal staff.

One member of the committee, Sen. Gen. Brewster, R. Me., said the choice of counsel would indicate whether the investigation was to be a fair one or a whitewash.

Fulton served on the war investigating committee when it was headed by President Truman, the senator from Missouri. His work won him many friends in the senate and he is believed to have the inside track for the job.

'CITIZEN ARMY' NOT NEEDED FOR JAP OCCUPATION

MacArthur Says Regular Army Men Can Handle Nipponese Job

date rather than be assigned occupation duties.

"Drastic Cut" Revealed

MacArthur revealed what he called a "drastic cut" in the intended occupation army in a formal statement.

"The unknown quantity in the initial situation was the debateable question of whether a military government would have to be set up to run the country during the early occupation," he said.

"This might well have involved the employment of several million troops. The entire structure below the political plane involving hundreds of thousands of people on professional and lower levels would have to be reconstructed and replaced.

"This would have involved a force running into millions of our men, would have taken years of additional time and untold billions of additional dollars.

"By utilizing the Japanese governmental structure to the extent necessary to prevent complete social disintegration, to insure internal distribution, to maintain labor and to prevent a calamitous outbreak of disease or wholesale starvation, the purposes of the surrender terms can be accomplished with only a small fraction of the men, time and money originally projected."

Landings Risky

MacArthur said the original landings involved "grave risk," but added that the subsequent progress already has assured the success of the occupation.

"Probably no greater gamble in history has been taken than the initial landings, in which our ground forces were outnumbered 1,000 to one, but the stakes were worth it," he said.

"As a consequence of the saving in men, the occupation forces originally believed essential are being drastically cut and troops will be returned to the United States as rapidly as ships can be made available."

DEATH CLAIMS FAMOUS TENOR, JOHN McCORMACK

DUBLIN, Sept. 17—John McCormack, world famous singer for more than 40 years, died at his home in county Dublin last night after a brief illness, he was 61.

The Irish tenor, who became an American citizen in 1919, had been in ill health and under a doctor's care for some time. Few details were available today, but it was known that he became ill last Monday and by Friday bronchial pneumonia had developed.

McCormack had been living quietly just outside Dublin and had made no public appearances since his farewell concert for the Red Cross at London's Albert hall in 1939.

Although he had sung in opera, McCormack caught the imagination of the world with his Irish ballads such as "Mother Machree" and "I Hear You Calling Me."

He made his real debut in the United States as a member of Oscar Hammerstein's Manhattan opera company on Nov. 10, 1909, appearing in Traviata with Tetrazzini and Sammarco.

His first appearance at the Metropolitan was in the same opera when he appeared with Madame Melba, at her special invitation.

It was on the concert stage that John McCormack was best known to the United States. His gay laugh and the rich quality of his voice made him a household word in every state in the union long before radio made it easy for a singer's fame to spread.

Continuation of the draft after the close of hostilities may be an important issue in next year's political wars. House Republicans are lining up in a move to force action on a bill to end the draft and to speed up discharges. Many Democrats can be expected to join in.

The administration is not happy at the idea of continuing the draft in light of the coming elections, but contends it is only fair to enable the discharge of more veterans. If the bill to attract more voluntary enlistees is successful, it will give the administration a way to cut future inductions.

Little opposition is expected to the enlistment bill in either house, although some members feel it does not offer sufficiently attractive inducements.

The measure before the house would:

1. Suspend the prewar regular army's top limit of 280,000 enlisted men.
2. Permit enlisted personnel to retire at half regular base pay after 20 years service.
3. Allow men who reenlist a 90 day furlough with pay and 5 cents a mile travel allowance to their homes before beginning new enlistment terms.
4. Permit reenlistees to collect mustering out pay before beginning new terms.
5. Provide a bonus of $50 a year for each year served in the last previous period of service to reenlistees.
6. Permit enlisted men with families to take either quarters allowance or family allowance at option.
7. Extend free mailing privileges.
8. Extend benefits of the GI Bill of Rights to reenlistees.
9. Continue the 20 per cent pay differential for overseas service.

BOWLES SEEKS DECISION IN OPA-WPB FEUD

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17—Price Chief Chester Bowles' reconversion price control program faces a major test this week.

Bowles is determined to go before Reconversion Chief John W. Snyder as soon as the latter returns from Europe, probably Wednesday, and ask him to resolve the weeks-long feud between the Office of Price Administration and the War Production Board over the question of new housing construction.

The points of contention are:

1. Whether all controls should be lifted to permit unrestricted construction of private homes.
2. Whether OPA should regulate prices on new homes.

The WPB wants to lift the lid completely on housing construction. It also contends that it will be administratively impossible to regulate prices.

Bowles and his advisers fear that if building restrictions are removed and if price control is not imposed, it will lead to a big speculative building spree, sharp rises in costs and elimination from the market of prospective low-priced home owners.

But above all this, Bowles is concerned over the possible effect unrestricted building might have on the OPA's general efforts to hold the line against inflation. An association of Bowles said it would "punch a big hole in the whole price structure."

RICK'S RECORD IS TOPPED BY FIVE ARMY ACES

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17—Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker's World War I record of 27 aircraft shot down in combat was topped by five Army aces of World War II, the war department reported today.

Leading the entire field with 40 planes was the late Maj. Richard I. Bong of Poplar, Wis., who was killed recently in the explosion of a jet-propelled plane he was testing. He served with the 5th Air Force in the South Pacific.

Not far behind with 37 kills was Maj. Thomas B. McGuire, Jr., San Antonio, Tex., another 5th Air Force flier. He is missing in action.

The three others who topped Rickenbacker's record flew with the 8th Air Force in Europe. They are Lt. Col. John C. Meyer, Forest Hills, N. Y., with 37 1/2 planes; Lt. Col. Francis S. Gabreski, Oil City, Pa., 28; and Maj. George E. Preddy, Greensboro, N. C., who was killed in action after shooting down 27 1/2 enemy craft.

Another 8th Air Force pilot, Maj. Robert S. Johnson of Lawton, Okla., tied Rickenbacker's mark of 27.

evidenced again by an announcement that the United Farm Equipment and Metal Workers (CIO) would seek a flat 30 per cent increase and (CIO) President Philip Murray's action in backing the United Steelworkers' demand for a $2-a-day wage increase.

Murray argued that the steel industry had netted more than $2,000,000,000 in war profits, whereas workers now were suffering great losses in production power through reduction of hours, overtime and incentive pay.

A tie-up of Midwestern Oil Refining operations was threatened as the CIO's oil workers union joined the parade of big unions demanding wage boosts, designed in most cases to compensate for the changeover from a 52 to a 40-hour week.

Ask Big Boost

Approximately 5,500 oil workers in the Chicago area were alerted for a walkout as union officials met with representatives of the Socony-Vacuum Oil Co. to present demands for a blanket 30 per cent pay increase.

In Akron, O., Goodrich Rubber Co. officials expressed hope for an early end to a strike by 14,000 rubber workers. The strikers voted last night to negotiate a return-to-work agreement with the company.

Eight thousand New York City decorators and painters remained on strike, although two thousand fellow unionists returned to their jobs today after signing agreements with independent companies.

A strike of 12,000 white collar workers settled down to a test of endurance between salaried office employees and the Westinghouse Electric Corp. Company officials said the strike, called to support demands for incentive pay bonuses, had forced the layoff of 19,000 production employees in five cities.

Meanwhile, operations were curtailed by strikes in the California fruit belt, the Pacific Northwest lumber area, the Hollywood film capital, the eastern textile mills and the tri-state area serviced by the United Fuel Gas Co., with headquarters in Charleston, W. Va.

Scores of other walkouts throughout the country accounted for many thousands of idle workers.

TWO CINCINNATI MEN PRESENT AT OLD BARN MEET

Lawrence Johnson and Charles T. Gilmore represented St. Phillips church of Cincinnati at the annual laymen's conference of the Episcopal Diocese of Southern Ohio Saturday and Sunday at Kenyon College in Gambier.

This year's conference marked the 25th anniversary of the establishment of this annual gathering, which is known as the Old Barn Conference. It derives its name from the Old Barn Club, near Dayton, where in 1920 the first conference was held.

The Right Reverend Henry Wise Hobson, Bishop of the Diocese of Southern Ohio, presided at this year's conference sessions. "Yesterday," he declared in his opening address, "was a thousand years ago. We face a new crisis in the world. The problems of peace are tremendous ones. They can be met successfully only by the application of the principles of Christianity."

The Reverend Clifford L. B. Nobes, an American missionary to the Philippines, recently returned to this country after three years with his wife and two young children in a Japanese concentration camp, told in great detail of the sufferings of the Philippine people and of the almost complete destruction of all church property in the islands.

The other featured speaker was Reverend Wilburn C. Campbell, executive secretary of the Presiding Bishop's Committee on Laymen's Work.

Litter In Miami

The millionaires' playground—Miami—was littered with debris. Power lines were down and water only trickled from taps during the storm's peak.

The only other reported death was that of a Jamaican Negro, who died trying to rescue the dog mascot on his small fishing vessel.

The hurricane tore into the southern tip of Florida Saturday, battering the Florida keys and whipping 99 mile-an-hour wind into the resort centers. It whipped across the state to the gulf and then circled back to the west coast, blowing to sea near St. Augustine last night.

Weather observers said once over the open sea it would pick up hurricane force again before sucking itself inland. They said sometimes storms of this hurricane's intensity bounce off the coast line for hundreds of miles. They push inland, diminish slightly, blow to sea and then push back again.

AUSSIERS REVEAL JAP MASSACRE OF 21 NURSES

SYDNEY, Sept. 17—Deputy Prime Minister Francis M. Forde today cited the Japanese massacre of 21 Australian nurses on Banka island off southern Sumatra as an out-standing example of why Tokyo's war criminals must be crushed.

"This is the worst atrocity ever perpetrated in the world's history," he said.

The story was told by 24 survivors of the original party of 65 nurses who attempted to escape from Singapore in 1942. The 24 women were brought from their prison camp in the depths of the Sumatra jungle by a RAAF transport plane.

They said their boat was sunk in the Banka straits and the Japanese ruthlessly murdered 21 nurses on the beach after they had landed from the wreck.

Solons Turn Attention To Touchy Problem Of Homecoming for Joes

Continuation of the draft after the close of hostilities may be an important issue in next year's political wars. House Republicans are lining up in a move to force action on a bill to end the draft and to speed up discharges. Many Democrats can be expected to join in.

The administration is not happy at the idea of continuing the draft in light of the coming elections, but contends it is only fair to enable the discharge of more veterans. If the bill to attract more voluntary enlistees is successful, it will give the administration a way to cut future inductions.

Little opposition is expected to the enlistment bill in either house, although some members feel it does not offer sufficiently attractive inducements.

BOWLES SEEKS DECISION IN OPA-WPB FEUD

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17—Price Chief Chester Bowles' reconversion price control program faces a major test this week.

Bowles is determined to go before Reconversion Chief John W. Snyder as soon as the latter returns from Europe, probably Wednesday, and ask him to resolve the weeks-long feud between the Office of Price Administration and the War Production Board over the question of new housing construction.

The points of contention are:

1. Whether all controls should be lifted to permit unrestricted construction of private homes.
2. Whether OPA should regulate prices on new homes.

The WPB wants to lift the lid completely on housing construction. It also contends that it will be administratively impossible to regulate prices.

Bowles and his advisers fear that if building restrictions are revoked and if price control is not imposed, it will lead to a big speculative building spree, sharp rises in costs and elimination from the market of prospective low-priced home owners.

But above all this, Bowles is unconcerned over the possible effect unrestricted building might have on the OPA's general efforts to hold the line against inflation. An association of Bowles said it would "punch a big hole in the whole price structure."

RICK'S RECORD IS TOPPED BY FIVE ARMY ACES

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17—Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker's World War I record of 27 aircraft shot down in combat was topped by five Army aces of World War II, the war department reported today.

Leading the entire field with 40 planes was the late Maj. Richard I. Bong of Poplar, Wis., who was killed recently in the explosion of a jet-propelled plane he was testing. He served with the 5th Air Force in the South Pacific.

Not far behind with 38 kills was Maj. Thomas B. McGuire, Jr., San Antonio, Tex., another 5th Air Force flier. He is missing in action.

The three others who topped Rickenbacker's record flew with the 8th Air Force in Europe. They are Lt. Col. John C. Meyer, Forest Hills, N. Y., with 37½ planes; Lt. Col. Francis S. Grabeski, Oil City, Pa., 28; and Maj. George E. Preddy, Greensboro, N. C., who was killed in action after shooting down 27½ enemy craft.

Another 8th Air Force pilot, Maj. Robert S. Johnson of Lawton, Okla., tied Rickenbacker's mark of 27.

TAX RELIEF BY NOVEMBER PLAN

of pending business and turn to taxes within a week or two.

Members of congressional tax committees have indicated substantial agreement on outright repeal of the 95 per cent wartime excess profits tax. They disagree on the method of affording relief to individual taxpayers.

Rep. Harold Knutson, of Minnesota, ranking Republican member of the ways and means committee, has proposed a flat 20 per cent cut in all brackets. This faces strong opposition from Democratic members and from the administration.

Some consider the cut excessive and expressed the belief that proportionately greater relief should be allowed in the low tax brackets through higher exemptions.

One proposal to achieve that objective would call for repeal of the three per cent normal tax, an outgrowth of the victory tax, which has been regarded as a wartime levy. The normal tax, a three per cent levy on all income in excess of $500, allows no exemptions for dependents.

Doughton made it clear that congress could not undertake a general overhauling of the tax structure at once. He said broad changes must wait until next year when more information on the postwar budget and national income would be available.

SOLONS START WORK ON ATOM CONTROL LAWS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17—Congress goes to work this week on the task of clamping some legislative controls on atomic energy.

The house judiciary committee is expected to go into closed-door sessions tomorrow on two atomic bomb bills. The senate foreign relations committee will meet Wednesday to study two other atom-inspired measures.

The bills range from a proposal to impose the death penalty for unauthorized disclosure of atomic bomb information to a resolution urging united nations action to ban the missile as an instrument of war.

Chairman Hatton W. Sumners, D. Tex., said his house judiciary committee will consider two death-penalty proposals, one of which he introduced.

His bill would impose capital punishment or imprisonment, according to the court's discretion, for anyone giving information "on the composition, manufacture, production and use of the explosive known as the atomic bomb" without congressional authority.

"This is an effort to freeze the situation until congress can decide a long-range policy for the country to follow in relation to the atomic bomb," he said.

CROWN RESTS TREASON CASE AGAINST HAW HAW

LONDON, Sept. 17—British prosecutors closed their treason case against William (Lord Haw Haw) Joyce today after a whirlwind presentation of testimony that he broadcast Nazi propaganda during the war.

Joyce went on trial in Old Bailey this morning, and at 2:30 p. m. the crown rested. Among the spectators in the crowded courtroom was Justice Robert Jackson, America's chief prosecutor for the forthcoming Nuremberg trial of Axis war criminals.

BOY, 11, FALLS TO DEATH IN ABANDONED BUILDING

COLUMBUS, Sept. 17—Ronald Evans, 12, plunged 60 feet to his death last night when he stumbled backward into a shaft in an abandoned building where he had gone to catch pigeons.

James Daugherty, 13, who was with the boy, told firemen that Ronald fell backward into the shaft leading to a grain storage bin at the abandoned Hoster Brewing Co.

RECONVERSION TROUBLES RISE THROUGH NATION

CIO Challenges Big Three To Come Out And Fight Or Grant Raises

evidenced again by an announcement that the United Farm Equipment and Metal Workers (CIO) would seek a flat 30 per cent increase and (CIO) President Philip Murray's action in backing the United Steelworkers' demand for a $2-a-day wage increase.

Murray argued that the steel industry had netted more than $2,000,000,000 in war profits, whereas workers now were suffering great losses in production power through reduction of hours, overtime and incentive pay.

A tie-up of Midwestern Oil Refining operations was threatened as the CIO's oil workers union joined the parade of big unions demanding wage boosts, designed in most cases to compensate for the changeover from a 52 to a 40-hour week.

Ask Big Boost
Approximately 5,500 oil workers in the Chicago area were alerted for a walkout as union officials met with representatives of the Socony-Vacuum Oil Co. to present demands for a blanket 30 per cent pay increase.

In Akron, O., Goodrich Rubber Co. officials expressed hope for an early end to a strike by 14,000 rubber workers. The strikers voted last night to negotiate a return-to-work agreement with the company.

Eight thousand New York City decorators and painters remained on strike, although two thousand fellow unionists returned to their jobs today after signing agreements with independent companies.

A strike of 12,000 white collar workers settled down to a test of endurance between salaried office employees and the Westinghouse Electric Corp. Company officials said the strike, called to support demands for incentive pay bonuses, had forced the layoff of 19,000 production employees in five cities.

Meanwhile, operations were curtailed by strikes in the California fruit belt, the Pacific Northwest lumber area, the Hollywood film capital, the eastern textile mills and the tri-state area serviced by the United Fuel Gas Co., with headquarters in Charleston, W. Va. Scores of other walkouts throughout the country accounted for many thousands of idle workers.

TWO CINCINNATI MEN PRESENT AT OLD BARN MEET

Lawrence Johnson and Charles T. Gilmore represented St. Phillips church of Cincinnati at the annual laymen's conference of the Episcopal Diocese of Southern Ohio Saturday and Sunday at Kenyon College in Gambler.

This year's conference marked the 25th anniversary of the establishment of this annual gathering, which is known as the Old Barn Conference. It derives its name from the Old Barn Club, near Dayton, where in 1920 the first conference was held.

The Right Reverend Henry Wise Hobson, Bishop of the Diocese of Southern Ohio, presided at this year's conference sessions. "Yesterday," he declared in his opening address, "was a thousand years ago. We face a new crisis in the world. The problems of peace are tremendous ones. They can be met successfully only by the application of the principles of Christianity."

The Reverend Clifford L. B. Nobes, an American missionary to the Philippines, recently returned to this country after three years with his wife and two young children in a Japanese concentration camp, told in great detail of the sufferings of the Philippine people and of the almost complete destruction of all church property in the islands.

The other featured speaker was Reverend Wilburn C. Campbell, executive secretary of the Presiding Bishop's Committee on Laymen's Work.

Litter In Miami
The millionaires' playground—Miami—was littered with debris. Power lines were down and water only trickled from taps during the storm's peak.

The only other reported death was that of a Jamaican Negro, who died trying to rescue the dog mascot on his small fishing vessel.

The hurricane tore into the southern tip of Florida Saturday, battering the Florida keys and whipping 99 mile-an-hour wind into the resort centers. It whipped across the state to the gulf and then circled back to the west coast, blowing to sea near St. Augustine last night.

Weather observers said once over the open sea it would pick up hurricane force again before sucking itself inland. They said sometimes storms of this hurricane's intensity bounce off the coast line for hundreds of miles. They push inland, diminish slightly, blow to sea and then push back again.

AUSSIES REVEAL JAP MASSACRE OF 21 NURSES

SYDNEY, Sept. 17—Deputy Prime Minister Francis M. Forde today cited the Japanese massacre of 21 Australian nurses on Banka island off southern Sumatra as an out-standing example of why Tokyo's war criminals must be crushed.

"This is the worst atrocity ever perpetrated in the world's history," he said.

The story was told by 24 survivors of the original party of 65 nurses who attempted to escape from Singapore in 1942. The 24 women were brought from their prison camp in the depths of the Sumatra jungle by a RAAF transport plane.

They said their boat was sunk in the Banka straits and the Japanese ruthlessly murdered 21 nurses on the beach after they had landed from the wreck.

SQUIRRELS HARD TO FIND; DUCK SEASON TO OPEN

Hunters were plentiful over the weekend as the squirrel season opened, but game was not found in large numbers.

Some nimrods bagged the limit but most of them came back with one or two squirrels. Nut crops were reported large in some areas and scarce in others. Recent dry weather was blamed for the apparent migration of squirrels to different areas.

Squirrel season continues through September 30.

Duck season opens Thursday, and from then on they can enjoy double opportunities on their hunting excursions. Duck hunters are required to have a federal duck stamp in addition to their regular state hunting license. The stamp costs $1 and is on sale at post offices.

In the first half of 1945 air-express shipments in the United States totaled 1,060,728, a gain of 28.6 per cent over the same period last year and the gross income increased 52.6 per cent over the same period of 1944.

YOUR STAKE IN WORLD AFFAIRS

To help the people of this country better understand the United Nations Charter and their responsibilities to world organization, the American Association for the United Nations is answering questions received reflecting the tremendous interest today and always for lasting peace.

QUESTION: What is the difference between the Council of Foreign Ministers Meeting in London and the United Nations Meeting in London?

ANSWER: The Council of Foreign Ministers, established by the Potsdam Conference, is meeting to draw up the treaties of peace with Italy, Rumania, Hungary, and Finland, and also prepare a peace settlement for Germany for the time when Germany is ready for such a step. The Big Five—the United States, Great Britain, Russia, France and China—are attending this meeting. Secretary of State Byrnes is our representative.

At San Francisco a Preparatory Commission composed of one representative from each of the participating governments was set up to make plans for the coming into being of the United Nations. Its executive committee, composed of the Big Five, together with Australia, Brazil, Canada, Chile, Czechoslovakia, Iran, Mexico, the Netherlands, and Yugoslavia, is now meeting in London, making plans for the first meeting of the General Assembly of the United Nations, establishing the Secretariat, considering where the United Nations should be located, and other such important questions related to setting up the United Nations as a going concern. Edward

R. Stettinius, Jr., is our chief representative at this meeting.

QUESTION: What is to happen to the League of Nations Mandates?

ANSWER: The Charter opens the way for these non-self-governing territories to come under the trusteeship system of the United Nations. All such League territories should become trust areas of the United Nations. It is hoped that the United States will urge such action.

QUESTION: Why should the United States accept compulsory jurisdiction of the International Court of Justice?

ANSWER: The Statute, or constitution, of the Court provides for each state to declare whether it will accept compulsory jurisdiction of the Court over certain types of legal disputes—that is, whether it will automatically submit such disputes to the Court. Under the old court over fifty nations agreed to do so. It is hoped that all members of the United Nations will accept the Courts compulsory jurisdiction, thus strengthening the Court and promoting the settlement of legal disputes by judicial means.

STIMSON MAY RESIGN POST DURING WEEK

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—Resignation of Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson is expected to be announced this week and there were reports today that General of the Army George C. Marshall soon may retire.

Marshall is in his sixth year as chief of staff. Stimson, a Republican, was nominated for the secretaryship July 10, 1940 by the late President Roosevelt.

Another top military figure expected to retire soon is General of the Army Henry H. Arnold, chief of the Army Air Forces. There has been speculation that Stimson would be succeeded by Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson, also a Republican, who took that position in 1940 as Stimson's chief aid.

Generals of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower and Douglas MacArthur both have figured in informal discussion of a successor to Marshall. Gen. Carl A. Spaatz and Lt. Gen. Ira C. Eaker have been most frequently discussed as likely successors to Arnold.

SQUIRRELS HARD TO FIND; DUCK SEASON TO OPEN

Hunters were plentiful over the weekend as the squirrel season opened, but game was not found in large numbers.

Some nimrods bagged the limit but most of them came back with one or two squirrels. Nut crops were reported large in some areas and scarce in others. Recent dry weather was blamed for the apparent migration of squirrels to different areas.

Squirrel season continues through September 30.

Duck season opens Thursday, hunters were reminded Monday, and from then on they can enjoy double opportunities on their hunting excursions. Duck hunters are required to have a federal duck stamp in addition to their regular state hunting license. The stamp costs $1 and is on sale at post offices.

In the first half of 1945 air-express shipments in the United States totaled 1,060,728, a gain of 28.6 per cent over the same period last year and the gross income increased 52.6 per cent over the same period of 1944.

YOUR STAKE IN WORLD AFFAIRS

To help the people of this country better understand the United Nations Charter and their responsibilities to world organization, the American Association for the United Nations is answering questions received reflecting the tremendous interest today and always for lasting peace.

QUESTION: What is the difference between the Council of Foreign Ministers Meeting in London and the United Nations Meeting in London?

ANSWER: The Council of Foreign Ministers, established by the Potsdam Conference, is meeting to draw up the treaties of peace with Italy, Rumania, Hungary, and Finland, and also prepare a peace settlement for Germany for the time when Germany is ready for such a step. The Big Five—the United States, Great Britain, Russia, France and China—are attending this meeting. Secretary of State Byrnes is our representative.

At San Francisco a Preparatory Commission composed of one representative from each of the participating governments was set up to make plans for the coming into being of the United Nations. Its executive committee, composed of the Big Five, together with Australia, Brazil, Canada, Chile, Czechoslovakia, Iran, Mexico, the Netherlands, and Yugoslavia, is now meeting in London, making plans for the first meeting of the General Assembly of the United Nations, establishing the Secretariat, considering where the United Nations should be located, and other such important questions related to setting up the United Nations as a going concern. Edward

R. Stettinius, Jr., is our chief representative at this meeting.

QUESTION: What is to happen to the League of Nations Mandates?

ANSWER: The Charter opens the way for these non-self-governing territories to come under the trusteeship system of the United Nations. All such League territories should become trust areas of the United Nations. It is hoped that the United States will urge such action.

QUESTION: Why should the United States accept compulsory jurisdiction of the International Court of Justice?

ANSWER: The Statute, or constitution, of the Court provides for each state to declare whether it will accept compulsory jurisdiction of the Court over certain types of legal disputes—that is, whether it will automatically submit such disputes to the Court. Under the old court over fifty nations agreed to do so. It is hoped that all members of the United Nations will accept the Courts compulsory jurisdiction, thus strengthening the Court and promoting the settlement of legal disputes by judicial means.

STIMSON MAY RESIGN POST DURING WEEK

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17—Resignation of Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson is expected to be announced this week and there were reports today that General of the Army George C. Marshall soon may retire.

Marshall is in his sixth year as chief of staff. Stimson, a Republican, was nominated for the secretaryship July 10, 1940 by the late President Roosevelt.

Another top military figure expected to retire soon is General of the Army Henry H. Arnold, chief of the Army Air Forces. There has been speculation that Stimson would be succeeded by Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson, also a Republican, who took that position in 1940 as Stimson's chief aid.

Generals of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower and Douglas MacArthur both have figured in informal discussion of a successor to Marshall. Gen. Carl A. Spaatz and Lt. Gen. Ira C. Eaker have been most frequently discussed as likely successors to Arnold.

LADY NEARLY CHOKED WHILE LYING IN BED— DUE TO STOMACH GAS

One lady said a few days ago that she used to be afraid to go to bed at night. She was swollen with stomach gas, which always got worse when she went to bed, and the gas would rise up in her throat after she lay down and would nearly choke her. She couldn't lie flat. Had to prop herself up on pillows. Recently this lady got ERB-HELP and now says gas is gone, stomach feels fine, bowels are regular and she can go to bed and sleep soundly.

ERB-HELP contains 12 Great Herbs; they cleanse bowels, clear gas from stomach, act on sluggish liver and kidneys. Miserable people soon feel different all over. So don't go on suffering! Get ERB-HELP. Sold by All Drug Stores here in Circleville.

HELP FOR FRIENDS AND FOES

TWO interesting problems have been staring us from the front pages these last few days, one from Tokyo and the other from England.

Japan, having wrecked her internal economy to fight a wicked war against us, now wants American credits to buy our machinery, food, cotton and lumber.

Britain, impoverished by the war she fought along with us to save both of us from disaster, needs large quantities of food and materials.

Well, what are we going to do? Help our enemies and let our friends perish? Certainly not. But we cannot let our enemies starve, either. World economy hangs together, and the "noblesse oblige" principle still operates. Little as the Japs deserve our help, it is necessary to get the wrecked Japanese government into operation again, lest we all get into still more trouble.

But help for Britain is the first imperative. Uncle Sam cannot afford to let John Bull sink.

INCENTIVE TAX PLAN

FRANK Wilbur Main, past president of the American Society of Certified Public Accountants, is pushing a tax plan which he thinks will help to simplify and improve the lot of the income tax payer. It makes greater deductions, which should help those with growing children, and proposes to tax corporations and their dividends once and once only. The stockholder pays no tax on dividends.

Those who support the Main plan believe that under it every individual and corporation will have more spendable income. "The elimination of double taxation on dividends will encourage a free flow of investment funds and thus a continuation of prosperity." Income after taxes will provide needed reserves.

Taking off penalty taxes on undistributed corporate profits, they figure, will allow surplus funds to be retained for basic needs. The fact that equal taxes will be paid on equal net taxable incomes seems fairer to them. Time and effort of the taxpayer will be saved, government audit be simplified and the incentive of the simplified structure will stimulate postwar prosperity.

Certainly all these aims are worthy. Whether this particular plan or some similar one be used, the fact that income taxes need to be made simpler and fairer is plain. Taxpayers will demand that much.

War chests are all right, but hope chests are the style now.

Some Silly Remarks
Dropped in Washington

Navy Wives in Dither
As Uniforms Go, Return

By HELEN ESSARY
Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON—The town is scatter-brained these days. You hear the silliest political, sartorial and militaristic remarks. For example:

At a Grade A ladies' lunch: "I'm so thrilled over that wonderful atomic bomb. They say there's absolutely nothing it can't do. Isn't it just too, too perfect?"

At a smart milliner's: "Should I be wearing glasses? Could I possibly have read that price tag right?"

"Indeed you did, my dear! $84.50 is right. But don't be disturbed. All the good hats are that this year. No one really minds."

In a hotel dining room: "I never was a poet. But by the shreds of my ration book, I'm going to write an 'Ode to Cottage Cheese.' Let me see now... 'Farwell to thee, thou pale and tasteless mess. Too oft have I seen thy pallid face, sitting at my left hand in a paper cup. Come, sweet butter! Bring thy rich, warm sun-kissed face... Bring back, bring back, bring back my butter to me-e-e.' Bring back—"

Voice across the table: "Poor woman! Poor, poor woman! She's more to be pitied than censured. She's got that new post-war disease—'dementia praecox rationis.'"

I meant Navy wife just as I wrote it at the beginning of this paragraph. Not naval officer. Because the wives were first affected by the order to change to civilian clothes. Trained to instant obedience and everlasting devotion, many wives rushed to the storage houses and ransacked them, praying that the moths had not got there first. They got out their men's tweeds and serges. Rushed said tweeds and serges to cleaning plants and tailor shops. Made quick tours of men's retail clothing stores. Then sat down with pencil and paper. Added up this and that. And wished, among other things, that the service pay would be upped, as have congressional salaries. Otherwise how in the world could the expenditures that had to be made ever be met?

Then along came the second order: "Uniforms again! Back to storage rooms rushed the wives, plus the husbands who were not at sea, and jammed the freshened civilian numbers into dusty old trunks. And left them there until who knows when."

Several young veterans have told me how disappointed they will be if they aren't permitted to wear their uniforms a while. At least long enough to go home and show the folk how they look as soldiers. Thousands of the draftees left home, when the order to make war came, feeling slightly weak in the knees. Now these same draftees are brown and erect. Heroes really.

A little wistful, too, as most heroes are. And anxious to have the home folk stop them on Main street and say: "My! You do look wonderful! What a great fellow you are!"

● UNDOUBTEDLY there are able persons in the Republican party. But sometimes I am compelled to think the GOP is slow on the uptake.

See what happened to the congressional investigation of Pearl Harbor. It was the Republicans who made the first big commotion on the theme: "Let us have the facts of Pearl Harbor." The possibility of investigating Pearl Harbor pleased the public. Some smart Democrats realized this immediately. "We can't let the opposition get away with this," said the Democrats. "Get Alben Barkley on the job."

Alben Barkley, senator from Kentucky and majority leader, was right on the job. Was got on so quickly and adroitly that before Senator Homer Ferguson of Michigan, selected to present the Republican request for congressional investigation, could get on his worthy feet, up sprang Alben and demanded a "Joint Senate-House committee of 10 members (six Democrats and four Republicans) to conduct a thorough Pearl Harbor probe."

In other words, now that the football season is about to begin, the Republicans had the kickoff. But Democrats stole the ball. And ran off with it.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17—Initial protests from two Republican congressmen against the British proposition for more money, are apt to be followed by an expanding run of bitter criticism. The Brits have monopolized press propaganda on the subject for two well-prepared months. A fair presentation of the facts has not been made to the public, largely because the American negotiators are following a silent, waiting policy. Yet the true circumstances are known in congress, and they are so disturbing they have created a rather general impression that the current British government is audaciously imposing upon the intelligence and helpful attitude of this nation, with preposterous propositions bordering on insult—or, as Mr. Knudsen succinctly asked: "What kind of saps do they think we are?" A beneficial outcome has unquestionably been prejudiced by the British preliminary tactics. The facts are:

The British asked and have been promised cancellation of the $29,000,000,000 of lend-lease obligations, a sum which would have operated the high spending Roosevelt government for three peacetime years, without anyone paying a cent of taxes.

This is to be forgiven and forgotten. But the $15,000,000,000 which the British got from within the empire for war, under similar arrangements of lend-lease, is not to be forgiven or forgotten. Indeed, the only official inkings of what is to be done about this war debt within the empire is that it may be refunded, scaled down and paid. Not a move has been made, and today, it stands as a valid existing debt.

In short, she comes to us pleading her inability to pay us a single ha'penny on the $29,000,000,000 she owes us, but makes no similar claim to India, Canada, Australia, and others of the empire who furnished half as much, and expect to get something back.

Only a feeble mind could be imposed upon to accept such a one-sided imposition on friendship. The American delegation will surely insist she set her house in order, and if we are to forgive her all, her own people should also—and do it first.

But she comes to us for more money—$35,000,000,000 to $6,000,000,000 more money. She does not send to us officials of her new Socialist government, but two holdover representatives of her former capitalist regime (Lords Keynes and Halifax.) The mentor, or brain trust, of her new government was at a labor party conference at Blackpool the day her delegates arrived here. He, Prof. Harold Laski, was quoted that day as telling his own people: "The age of capitalism is drawing to a close." Here they are seeking to draw $35,000,000,000, out of our capitalistic nation and telling us our way of life is dead. They want to scratch all Churchill got from us, and get more for themselves, through two representatives in no position to give valid endurance to promises, while their new regime stays home and says capitalism is dead—and announces plans to kill as far as the Bank of England, mines, transportation, power and some other British industries are concerned.

DIET AND HEALTH

What Happens When There Is Too Little Sugar in the Blood

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

THE amount of sugar in the blood has a great deal to do with how a person feels. When the sugar content of the blood is too low, the disorder is known as hypoglycemia. The condition may occur not only in grownups, but also in infants and children.

The diagnosis of hypoglycemia is not difficult, although the symptoms vary to a great extent. There may be actual convulsions, with loss of consciousness and spasms of the muscles. In milder cases, there may be just a feeling of weakness and faintness. When such an attack occurs, a chemical examination of the blood will reveal the deficiency of blood sugar. Before the attack develops, there may be a feeling of confusion.

Early Morning Attacks

Attacks of hypoglycemia come on, as a rule, in the early morning hours, especially if little or no food was eaten the evening before. It was found that relief is promptly obtained when the patient takes food, noticeably sugar. If the patient is not seen during an attack, and the doctor suspects the trouble to be due to hypoglycemia, he may attempt to bring on an attack by having the patient fast. Then, by making an examination of the blood sugar when symptoms occur, the diagnosis is arrived at. Once a diagnosis of hypoglycemia is made, steps are taken to determine the cause.

In most cases of hypoglycemia, the longer the fasting period, the lower the blood sugar is likely to be. While most attacks may occur before breakfast, in some patients, the attacks develop about three or four hours after meals.

Two Causes

The hypoglycemia may be due to either of two causes, namely, (1) too much insulin being formed by the pancreas, or (2) a lack of certain glandular secretions such as those from the pituitary gland or the adrenals, which act against insulin. However, up to the present, no treatment has been found which will get rid of the disturbances producing the condition. Hence, such treatment as is used can be relied upon to check the symptoms only.

This can be done in two ways. First, by giving sugar and, second, in some instances by injecting a glandular extract known as epinephrine. However, it has been found that these injections do not have a lasting effect and the physician may want to repeat them every day or two. It is important for patients with hypoglycemia to avoid fasting. When infections occur, it is doubly important that plenty of starches and sugars be included in the diet. A high protein diet, that is, a diet containing plenty of meat, milk and eggs, is also beneficial.

SYNOPSIS
SANDRA EDWARDS is an attractive, red-headed dress designer who volunteers to take 11-year-old SPENSER WITHINGTON, an English boy who was bombed out of his home, to live with her on a dude ranch in Arizona until he can return home. BELINDA ADAMS is the unhappy 13-year-old daughter of GORDON ADAMS, handsome owner of Mesquite Ranch.

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN
SANDRA EDWARDS would have been surprised, even disappointed, if she could have heard the conversation between Belinda and her father. There was nothing dramatic or spectacular about it, no key for the red-haired girl to use in her plans to win over the little girl.

"Hi, Dad," Belinda showed emotion in no way except her walk. It surpassed her usual gait, which was speedy enough.

"Hello, Skeeter." It was as if they had seen each other only a few hours earlier. Gordon Adams knew their periodic reunions had to be casual. But he was frequently amazed that his young daughter also knew it. She seemed to sense there could be no reproaches, no sulking.

She sat down at his feet. "Have a nice swim?" "Not bad, although I was too tired to stay in long. I'll feel stronger tomorrow." He tugged at one of her black pigtails. "You must come in with me tomorrow. It's more fun when a person has company."

"You had company." "Yeh," he observed dryly. "And was I surprised!" Belinda glanced up quickly. "You're not angry because they are here, are you, Dad? You always do favors for Mr. Wakeman, so Brody and I thought—"

Her father cut in on her apologies. "Of course I'm not angry, Skeeter. Just as I said, I was surprised. There I was, basking in the sun. I figured I was all alone. No one had told me we had guests. You can imagine how I felt when the red-haired babe came out of her room." He saw his daughter's features relax happily over his slangy description of Sandra.

As if the words were being pulled from her with a forceps, Belinda said: "She is a pretty red-head." "So what? Tell me about little Lord Four-Eyes. How do you get along with him?"

"I don't like him either," she said, baring her dislike for Sandra. "He's a snoot. Dad, all that 'Cheerio' and 'Toodle-oo' stuff." "You mustn't be provincial, Belinda. That's no different from 'Hi' and such American remarks." The little girl's nose curled. "That's not all. He won't go to school here in Copper Creek. He's trying to make Miss Edwards send him to a private school down in La Madera."

"Let him go," Gordon Adams was working on another cigaret. Apparently the taste in his mouth was better, for he kept on smoking. "I should think you'd be glad if Four-Eyes left the Mesquite. Then you wouldn't have him around to annoy you."

"He could be friendly if he tried." "Do you try?" Again her words seemed to be pulled from her. "Well—no, Dad. But I would if he did."

"That sort of argument doesn't get a person very far. But if he isn't comfortable, let him alone. You have Brody and the boys. And in a few weeks there will be so many guests you'll hardly remember who Spenser Withington is."

Belinda made another condemnation. "He's a darn aisy, too. I had to give an oral report on the bombing of London. I wouldn't have had to depend on the newspaper. I'd have had something real and first-hand. But when I asked him he just looked at me so nasty and said: 'Tolly, Belinda,' and walked away. As if that made any sense. When I kept after him he said it was too terrible to talk about. So, I decided he was a aisy."

"Not necessarily, Skeeter." For a few seconds Gordon Adams did not speak. Then he reminded: "You remember the rodeo at the Two-Bar ranch, don't you? And you remember old Tuffy dragged to death? That was too terrible to talk about. We never did talk about it."

There was a white line about Belinda's lips. After a while she dared loosen them. "When you put it to me like that, Dad, I catch." She drew a long breath. "Seriously, though, don't you think he's being smooty about that school business?"

"Most well-to-do children in England go to private schools, Skeeter. You'd go to one yourself if you lived over there. You just happen to live in the most democratic country in the world and in the most democratic section of that country."

The man grinned: "Don't be too hard on little Lord Four-Eyes. He's just a funny looking English boy in short pants and long socks with skinny knees showing in between."

"I don't think he's so funny looking, Dad." Again Gordon Adams was silent. Before, that silence had been caused by memories of Tuffy; this time, it was caused by amusement. To him Spenser was a comical like. Belinda's defense made the ranch owner feel as if his face were going to crack into a wide grin. He pulled a sweater over his head and hid it as long as he dared.

Finally he emerged. "Shall we get changed for supper now, Skeeter?" He dragged her to her feet, then put his arm around her as they went along the patio walk. "By the way, what do you want for your birthday?" Belinda's heart was singing. She wanted to skip, but Belinda's heart was too much of a hindrance. He hadn't forgotten. He had come down from the cliff cottage especially for her birthday.

THE "FORCING PASS"
THERE ARE plenty of times when a pass by a fine player shows more strength than a bid would. That is when your partner already knows you are strong enough to make a business or penalty double of an opponent's bid and are passing the buck to him to decide if it would be more profitable to bid. It is also when you partner knows you could make a contract which you might bid and are passing the buck to him to decide whether a double might be more profitable.

Notice the difference between North's double on his third turn at Table 1, and North's pass on the same turn at Table 2. The pass told South that although North certainly could double the 7-

Spades, he had some good reason for not doubling. It could only be that he was so strong that the grand slam might be possible in No Trumps if South had any grand slam material. Since South had not definitely indicated his possession of the spade A, he considered that enough, and it proved right, for the slam was made easily.

Where North doubled the 7-Spades, it implied to South doubt that the big slam might be possible in No Trumps, so South left the double in. The "forcing pass" here was stronger action than either a bid or a double, implying that North could do his part for either.

At another table in the big duplicate, South opened with 3-Hearts, North bid 6-Hearts, and East cut in with 6-Spades, which South doubled. That gave a big East-West top to the spade bidder, who was set only three tricks. East explained that, if West had been obliged to take out into 7-Clubs, he would have tried 7-Diamonds, thus having two chances for a sacrifice fit.

HELP FOR FRIENDS AND FOES

TWO interesting problems have been staring us from the front pages these last few days, one from Tokyo and the other from England.

Japan, having wrecked her internal economy to fight a wicked war against us, now wants American credits to buy our machinery, food, cotton and lumber.

Britain, impoverished by the war she fought along with us to save both of us from disaster, needs large quantities of food and materials.

Well, what are we going to do? Help our enemies and let our friends perish? Certainly not. But we cannot let our enemies starve, either. World economy hangs together, and the "noblesse oblige" principle still operates. Little as the Japs deserve our help, it is necessary to get the wrecked Japanese government into operation again, lest we all get into still more trouble.

But help for Britain is the first imperative. Uncle Sam cannot afford to let John Bull sink.

INCENTIVE TAX PLAN

FRANK Wilbur Main, past president of the American Society of Certified Public Accountants, is pushing a tax plan which he thinks will help to simplify and improve the lot of the income tax payer. It makes greater deductions, which should help those with growing children, and proposes to tax corporations and their dividends once and once only. The stockholder pays no tax on dividends.

Those who support the Main plan believe that under it every individual and corporation will have more spendable income. "The elimination of double taxation on dividends will encourage a free flow of investment funds and thus a continuation of prosperity." Income after taxes will provide needed reserves.

Taking off penalty taxes on undistributed corporate profits, they figure, will allow surplus funds to be retained for basic needs. The fact that equal taxes will be paid on equal net taxable incomes seems fairer to them. Time and effort of the taxpayer will be saved, government audit be simplified and the incentive of the simplified structure will stimulate postwar prosperity.

Certainly all these aims are worthy. Whether this particular plan or some similar one be used, the fact that income taxes need to be made simpler and fairer is plain. Taxpayers will demand that much.

War chests are all right, but hope chests are the style now.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17—Initial tests from two Republican congressmen against the British proposition for more money, are apt to be followed by an expanding run of bitter criticism. The British have monopolized press propaganda on the subject for two well-prepared months. A fair presentation of the facts has not been made to the public, largely because the American negotiators are following a silent, waiting policy. Yet the true circumstances are known in congress, and they are so disturbing they have created a rather general impression that the current British government is audaciously imposing upon the intelligence and helpful attitude of this nation, with preposterous propositions bordering on insult—or, as Mr. Knudsen succinctly asked: "What kind of saps do they think we are?" A beneficial outcome has unquestionably been prejudiced by the British preliminary tactics. The facts are:

The British asked and have been promised cancellation of the $29,000,000,000 of lend-lease obligations, a sum which would have operated the high spending Roosevelt government for three peacetime years, without anyone paying a cent of taxes.

This is to be forgiven and forgotten. But the $15,000,000,000 which the British got from within the empire for war, under similar arrangements of lend-lease, is not to be forgiven or forgotten. Indeed, the only official inkling of what is to be done about this war debt within the empire is that it may be refunded, scaled down and paid. Not a move has been made, and today, it stands as a valid existing debt.

In short, she comes to us pleading her inability to pay us a single ha'penny on the $29,000,000,000 she owes us, but makes no similar claim to India, Canada, Australia, and others of the empire who furnished half as much, and expect to get something back.

Only a feeble mind could be imposed upon to accept such a one sided imposition on friendship. The American delegation will surely insist she set her house in order, and if we are to forgive her all, her own people should also—and do it first.

But she comes to us for more money—$3,000,000,000 to $5,000,000,000 more money. She does not send to us officials of her new Socialist government, but two holdover representatives of her former capitalist regime (Lords Keynes and Halifax.) The mentor, or brain truster, of her new government was at a labor party conference at Blackpool the day her delegates arrived here. He, Prof. Harold Laski, was quoted that day as telling his own people: "The age of capitalism is drawing to a close." Here they are seeking to draw $3,000,000,000, out of our capitalistic nation and telling us our way of life is dead. They want to scratch all Churchill got from us, and get more for themselves, through two representatives in no position to give valid endurance to promises, while their new regime stays home and says capitalism is dead—and announces plans to kill as far as the Bank of England, mines, transportation, power and some other British industries are concerned.

DIET AND HEALTH

What Happens When There Is Too Little Sugar in the Blood

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

THE amount of sugar in the blood has a great deal to do with how a person feels. When the sugar content of the blood is too low, the disorder is known as hypoglycemia. The condition may occur not only in grownups, but also in infants and children.

The diagnosis of hypoglycemia is not difficult, although the symptoms vary to a great extent. There may be actual convulsions, with loss of consciousness and spasms of the muscles. In milder cases, there may be just a feeling of weakness and faintness. When such an attack occurs, a chemical examination of the blood will reveal the deficiency of blood sugar. Before the attack develops, there may be a feeling of confusion.

Early Morning Attacks

Attacks of hypoglycemia come on, as a rule, in the early morning hours, especially if little or no food was eaten the evening before. It was found that relief is promptly obtained when the patient takes food, noticeably sugar. If the patient is not seen during an attack, and the doctor suspects the trouble to be due to hypoglycemia, he may attempt to bring on an attack by having the patient fast. Then, by making an examination of the blood sugar when symptoms occur, the diagnosis is arrived at. Once a diagnosis of hypoglycemia is made, steps are taken to determine the cause.

In most cases of hypoglycemia, the longer the fasting period, the lower the blood sugar is likely to be. While most attacks may occur before breakfast, in some patients, the attacks develop about three or four hours after meals.

Two Causes

The hypoglycemia may be due to either of two causes, namely, (1) too much insulin being formed by the pancreas, or (2) a lack of certain glandular secretions such as those from the pituitary gland or the adrenals, which act against insulin. However, up to the present, no treatment has been found which will get rid of the disturbances producing the condition. Hence, such treatment as is used can be relied upon to check the symptoms only.

This can be done in two ways. First, by giving sugar and, second, in some instances by injecting a glandular extract known as epinephrine. However, it has been found that these injections do not have a lasting effect and the physician may want to repeat them every day or two.

It is important for patients with hypoglycemia to avoid fasting. When infections occur, it is doubly important that plenty of starches and sugars be included in the diet. A high protein diet, that is, a diet containing plenty of meat, milk and eggs, is also beneficial.

Pattern for Love

SYNOPSIS
SANDRA EDWARDS is an attractive, red-headed dress designer who volunteers to take 11-year-old SPENSER WITHINGTON, an English boy who was bombed out of his home, live with her on a dude ranch in Arizona until he can return home. BELINDA ADAMS is the unhappy 13-year-old daughter of GORDON ADAMS, handsome owner of Mesquite Ranch.

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN
SANDRA EDWARDS would have been surprised, even disappointed, if she could have heard the conversation between Belinda and her father. There was nothing dramatic or spectacular about it, no key for the red-haired girl to use in her plans to win over the little girl.

"Hi, Dad," Belinda showed emotion in no way except her walk. It surprised her usual gait, which was speedy enough.

"Hello, Skeeter," he was as if they had seen each other only a few hours earlier. Gordon Adams knew their periodic reunions had to be casual. But he was frequently amazed that his young daughter also knew it. She seemed to sense there could be no reproaches, no sulking.

She sat down at his feet. "Have a nice swim?" "Not bad, although I was too tired to stay in long. I'll feel stronger tomorrow." He tugged at one of her black pigtail. "You must come in with me tomorrow. It's more fun when a person has company."

"You had company," "Yeh," he observed dryly. "And was I surprised?"

Belinda glanced up quickly. "You're not angry because they are here, are you, Dad? You always do favors for Mr. Wakeman, so Brody and I thought—"

Her father cut in on her apologies. "Of course I'm not angry, Skeeter. Just as I said, I was surprised. There I was, basking in the sun. I figured I was all alone. No one had told me we had guests. You can imagine how I felt when the red-haired babe came out of her room." He saw his daughter's features relax happily over his slangy description of Sandra.

As if the words were being pulled from her with a forceps, Belinda said: "She is a pretty red-head."

"So what? Tell me about little Lord Four-Eyes. How do you get along with him?" "I don't like him either," she said, baring her dislike for Sandra. "He's a snoot, Dad. All that 'Cheerio' and 'Toodle-oo' stuff."

"You mustn't be provincial, Belinda. That's no different from 'Hi' and such American remarks." The little girl's nose curled.

"That's not all. He won't go to school here in Copper Creek. He's trying to make Miss Edwards send him to a private school down in La Madera."

"Let him go," Gordon Adams was working on another cigaret. Apparently the taste in his mouth was better, for he kept on smoking. "I should think you'd be glad if Four-Eyes left the Mesquite. Then you wouldn't have him around to annoy you."

"He could be friendly if he tried." "Do you try?"

Again her words seemed to be pulled from her. "Well—no, Dad. But I would if he did."

But that sort of argument doesn't get a person very far. But if he isn't companionable, let him alone. You have Brody and the boys. And in a few weeks there will be so many guests you'll hardly remember who Spenser Withington is."

Belinda made another condemnation. "He's a darn silly, too. I had to give an oral report on the bombing of London. I wouldn't have had to depend on the newspaper. I'd have had something real and first-hand. But when I asked him he just looked at me so nasty and said: 'Rully, Belinda' and walked away."

As if that made any sense. When I kept after him he said it was too terrible to talk about. So, I decided he was a sissy."

"Not necessarily, Skeeter." For a few seconds Gordon Adams did not speak. Then he reminded: "You remember the rodeo at the Two-Bar ranch, don't you? And you remember little Tuffy dragged to death? That was too terrible to talk about. We never did talk about it."

There was a white line about Belinda's lips. After a while she dared loosen them. "When you put it to me like that, Dad, I catch." She drew a long breath. "Seriously, though, don't you think he's being snooty about that school business?"

"Most well-to-do children in England go to private schools, Skeeter. You'd go to one yourself if you lived over there. You just happen to live in the most democratic country in the world and in the most democratic section of that country."

The man grinned: "Don't be too hard on little Lord Four-Eyes. He's just a funny looking English boy in skin pants and long socks with skinny knees showing in between." "I don't think he's so funny looking, Dad."

Again Gordon Adams was silent. Before the silence had been caused by memories of Tuffy, this time, it was caused by amusement. To him Spenser was a comical little, Belinda's defense made the ranch owner feel as if his face were going to crack into a wide grin. He pulled a sweater over his head and hid in it as long as he dared.

Finally he emerged. "Shall we get changed for supper now, Skeeter?" He dragged her to her feet, then put his arm around her as they went along the patio walk. "By the way, what do you want for your birthday?"

Suddenly Belinda's heart was singing. She wanted to skip, but decided her boots were too much of a hindrance. He hadn't forgotten. He had come down from the cliff cottage especially for her birthday.

Mrs. King, Mrs. Bissell Take Part In DACEvent

Regent Is Speaker
At Meeting Held In Columbus

Two local women took part in the ritualistic service of the Colonel William Ball chapter, Daughters of the American Colonists at the September meeting of the chapter in the Deshler Wallieck hotel, Columbus, Saturday.

Mrs. Orion King, treasurer, and Mrs. William Bissell, chaplain, participated. The meeting was preceded by a luncheon at 12:30 p. m. at which Mrs. Martin Dumble and Mrs. Ella Pancake both of Columbus were co-hostesses. The luncheon was served in the Spanish room and the meeting was then held in the hotel parlor.

A talk by Miss Daisy Hammond, Dayton, state regent, highlighted the meeting. Miss Hammond talked about the work of the department and urged the chapter to work consistently with the state officers. She also advised them to select a slate for the next year who would do likewise.

Mrs. Willis Jones, Mt. Sterling, read a paper entitled "The First Negroes Brought to the American Colonies". Mrs. Jones said they came here in 1619 and were all taken to Virginia and Maryland. They were used as slaves and then as the cotton industry in the South increased many were taken to the other Southern States.

For the business session, Mrs. Frank B. Thompson, chapter regent, was in charge and she heard the reports of the treasurer and secretary.

Arrangements for the next meeting of the chapter were made when election of officers will be held. Officers to be elected are regent, vice regent, chaplain, treasurer, recording secretary, corresponding secretary, registrar, historian and librarian.

Besides Mrs. King and Mrs. Bissell, others present from this vicinity were Mrs. Robert L. Trimble, Mrs. W. O. Finley, Mrs. Jones, Mrs. Bruno Schadel and Mrs. John F. Zahn, Mt. Sterling.

Miss Valeria Bostwick will be hostess at the next meeting which will be held at the "Far East", Chinese restaurant, Bexley, October 20.

Mrs. King is also department historian of the D. A. C. and a past regent of the Colonel William Ball chapter.

Mrs. King, Mrs. Bissell Take Part In DAC Event

Regent Is Speaker At Meeting Held In Columbus

Two local women took part in the ritualistic service of the Colonel William Ball chapter, Daughters of the American Colonists at the September meeting of the chapter in the Deshler Wallick hotel, Columbus, Saturday.

Mrs. Orion King, treasurer, and Mrs. William Bissell, chaplain, participated. The meeting was preceded by a luncheon at 12:30 p. m. at which Mrs. Martin Dumble and Mrs. Ella Pancake both of Columbus were co-hostesses. The luncheon was served in the Spanish room and the meeting was then held in the hotel parlor.

A talk by Miss Daisy Hammond, Dayton, state regent, highlighted the meeting. Miss Hammond talked about the work of the department and urged the chapter to work consistently with the state officers. She also advised them to select a slate for the next year who would do likewise.

Mrs. Willis Jones, Mt. Sterling, read a paper entitled "The First Negroes Brought to the American Colonies". Mrs. Jones said they came here in 1619 and were all taken to Virginia and Maryland. They were used as slaves and then as the cotton industry in the South increased many were taken to the other Southern States.

For the business session, Mrs. Frank B. Thompson, chapter regent, was in charge and she heard the reports of the treasurer and secretary.

Arrangements for the next meeting of the chapter were made when election of officers will be held. Officers to be elected are regent, vice regent, chaplain, treasurer, recording secretary, corresponding secretary, registrar, historian and librarian.

Besides Mrs. King and Mrs. Bissell, others present from this vicinity were Mrs. Robert L. Trimble, Mrs. W. O. Finley, Mrs. Jones, Mrs. Bruno Schadel and Mrs. John F. Zahn, Mt. Sterling.

Miss Valeria Bostwick will be hostess at the next meeting which will be held at the "Far East", Chinese restaurant, Bexley, October 20.

Mrs. King is also department historian of the D. A. C. and a past regent of the Colonel William Ball chapter.

COLLEGE GRID SCHEDULE HEAVY THIS WEEKEND

NEW YORK, Sept. 17—Collegiate football muscles into the national sporting scene in full strength this week with a program of top-flight games involving standout contenders for sectional and national honors.

The Michigan Wolverines, who used freshmen to defeat Great Lakes naval station, 27 to 2, open the Big Ten conference season with the Indiana Hoosiers at Ann Arbor. Despite its September setting, the game is significant as both teams have championship ideas.

Other Big Ten teams open against non-conference opponents. Illinois is host to Pittsburgh, Wisconsin plays at Great Lakes, Minnesota takes on the visiting Missouri Tigers, Northwestern entertains Iowa State, and Purdue opens at home with Marquette.

In the East, Army's defending national champions may be facing a foe as tough as they encountered last season when they play the Louisville Army Air Forces redistribution center at West Point.

The traditional rivalry between Cornell and Syracuse flares anew in another standout eastern game.

COLLEGE GRID SCHEDULE HEAVY THIS WEEKEND

NEW YORK, Sept. 17—Collegiate football muscles into the national sporting scene in full strength this week with a program of top-flight games involving standout contenders for sectional and national honors.

The Michigan Wolverines, who used freshmen to defeat Great Lakes naval station, 27 to 2, open the Big Ten conference season with the Indiana Hoosiers at Ann Arbor. Despite its September setting, the game is significant as both teams have championship ideas.

Other Big Ten teams open against non-conference opponents. Illinois is host to Pittsburgh. Wisconsin plays at Great Lakes. Minnesota takes on the visiting Missouri Tigers. Northwestern entertains Iowa State, and Purdue opens at home with Marquette.

In the East, Army's defending national champions may be facing a foe as tough as they encountered last season when they play the Louisville Army Air Forces redistribution center at West Point.

The traditional rivalry between Cornell and Syracuse flares anew in another standout eastern game.

"Two Typewriter" Chase
Ika Chase is currently keeping two typewriters busy in her Glen Cove Long Island summer home. One machine is used for turning out the script for her new Sunday show "Ika Chase Observes." By whirling her chair around to the other typewriter, she can whack out a chapter of her new novel tentatively titled "I Love Miss Tillie Bean," scheduled for Spring publication.

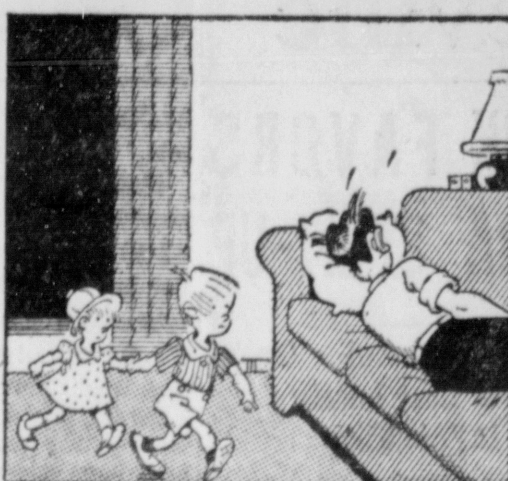

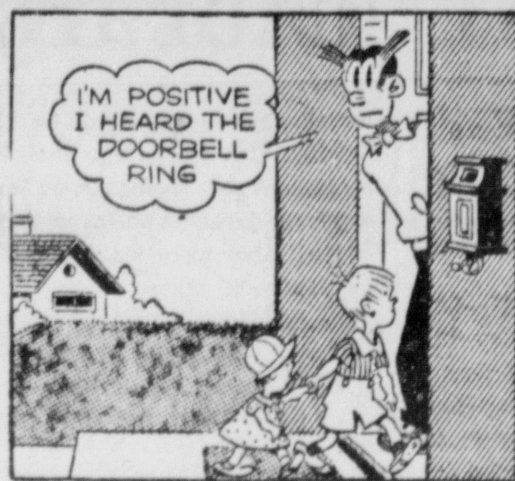

"Symphony For She's"
A group of enterprising lassies from Phil Spitalny's all-girl "Hour of Charm" orchestra has been collaborating on a musical opus which they hope to have Maestro Phil introduce to the nation. Tentative title for the number is "Symphony for She's."

Radio News Notes
James Melton was driving about the countryside near his Westport, Conn., home one day last week when he spied two bobby-soxers on the road and stopped the car to see if he could give them a lift. The girls were taken aback when they recognized the tenor and explained they were coming to visit the newspaper profession by storm. That little girl was Nellie Bly, the first and most colorful woman foreign correspondent. Cavalcade of America presents highlights of her fabulous career tonight, when beautiful Ida Lupino stars in "Nellie Was a Lady."

Therapeutic Beauty
"Blind Date's" Arlene Francis is not only entertaining, but she's therapeutic, too! Take the word of an early American ambulance driver in France for that. According to a letter Arlene recently received from him, he proved that she was a new therapy for wounded GIs by papering the inside of his ambulance with sleek photos of her, and he reports that her

Ida Portrays "Nellie"

Women journalists of today quite matter-of-factly travel everywhere in the world to get their stories. . . many of them have been foreign correspondents all through the war. However, back in 1885, it was unheard of for the few newspaperwomen of the day to write anything but cooking recipes, and society news. . . that is it was unheard of, till a little girl with big gray eyes, the voice of a dove, and the energy of a wildcat took the newspaper profession by storm. That little girl was Nellie Bly, the first and most colorful woman foreign correspondent. Cavalcade of America presents highlights of her fabulous career tonight, when beautiful Ida Lupino stars in "Nellie Was a Lady."

Therapeutic Beauty

"Blind Date's" Arlene Francis is not only entertaining, but she's therapeutic, too! Take the word of an early American ambulance driver in France for that. According to a letter Arlene recently received from him, he proved that she was a new therapy for wounded GIs by papering the inside of his ambulance with sleek photos of her, and he reports that her the newspaper profession by storm. That little girl was Nellie Bly, the first and most colorful woman foreign correspondent. Cavalcade of America presents highlights of her fabulous career tonight, when beautiful Ida Lupino stars in "Nellie Was a Lady."

"Symphony For She's"

A group of enterprising lasses from Phil Spitalny's all-girl "Hour of Charm" orchestra has been collaborating on a musical opus which they hope to have Maestro Phil introduce to the nation. Tentative title for the number is "Symphony for She's"

Radio News Notes

James Melton was driving about the countryside near his Westport, Conn., home one day last week when he spied two bobby-soxers on the road and stopped the car to see if he could give them a lift. The girls were taken aback when they recognized the tenor and explained they were coming to visit

Maps and Drawings of Old Circleville On Display At Library

EARLY RECORDS OF COMMUNITY MAY BE STUDIED

Collection From Wittich Estate Is Shown In Good-Looking Cases

BY ENID DENHAM

Now on display at the Circleville Public Library is the gift of Circleville maps and drawings from the estate of the late G. F. Wittich, presented to the library by Frank Wittich, Loring Wittich, Fred Wittich and Mrs. Irving Weart, his descendants.

The gift which came to the library in 1943 is a series of records of development of the City of Circleville. There is a pencil sketch of the first court house, octagonal in shape, in the center of the circular layout that gave the town its name. This was drawn in 1836. The three birds-eye-views contain first of all the pencil sketch of Circleville as it appeared in 1836 drawn from memory in 1870 by Mr. Wittich.

There are little buildings, stores and farm buildings, horses and wagons, trees, passers-by, all drawn to scale and tinted in water color, scenes indicative of the plan and life of the community of that time. All the streets radiate from the central hub, the court house, with Court and Main then both "Main Street." There are two outer circles, on the most distant, the drawing shows portions of the ancient moats used as fortification against marauding enemies. Many of the buildings are numbered and notes in the lower margin indicate their ownership and use.

The second sketch shows the city in 1856 after the streets have been "squared" with views from Main Street looking North and South. In this sketch, too, there are included larger front views of several well-known buildings, the Second National Bank, what is now the Marfield residence, the old Court House, "Doc Peck's Block" or what is now "Murphy's."

The third sketch was drawn and then lithographed, and represents the city in 1876. This, too, has important and key buildings numbered and named in the margins. Although the gift itself is not of recent date, wartime restrictions have prevented them from being housed in the good-looking cases in which they are now mounted. Many members of the community have contributed materials, services, and time in making this project possible now, even in the face of restrictions.

The black walnut lumber, an otherwise unobtainable material, was given to the library by George Foreman of South Court Street, who also spent a good part of a day getting it out of storage. Under the supervision of C. F. Zaenglein, head of the manual training department of the Circleville Schools, six high school boys who acted as his assistants during the year, made the cases as an outside project.

Measurements were taken and designs made by Barton Deming, Jr. who acted as draughtsman. Dudley Coffland, William Weller, Warden Skinner, Jack Wise and Clariol Sykes constructed the frames. Ralph Ward stained the inner panels on which the pictures rest, and Fred Wittich, grandson of G. F. Wittich, the artist, gave his services in mounting and fitting the pictures into the frames.

The library board wishes to acknowledge the help of all these people and to thank each and every one who has given so generously of his time, services, and materials in making these valuable maps available to the public. Few communities have a history and records in such an excellent state of preservation, and Circleville may well be proud of them.

Before the war one of the chief attractions at Yokosuka for visiting Japanese was Admiral Togo's flagship, the Mikasa, which rode peacefully at anchor on a concrete base. The ship, which fought in the Russo-Japanese war of 1905 was preserved as a reminder of Japan's victory and the nation's growing sea power.

John James Audubon, the French-born painter of American wildlife, lived from 1810 to 1819 in Henderson, Ky., where he operated a general store and a real estate business. The state has built a 650-acre Audubon Memorial State park in his honor.

CLARK FAVORS ALCOA SPLIT-UP

Attorney General Claims Lower Cost Industry Is Possibility

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17—Attorney General Tom C. Clark recommended today that the vast Aluminum Company of America be split up into a number of competing companies to provide a "more efficient, lower cost industry."

In a report to congress on monopoly factors in reconversion, Clark said that ALCOA now controls, through ownership or lease, more than 90 percent of the aluminum industry's productive capacity. Reynolds metal, ALCOA's only competitor, is dependent on ALCOA for much raw material, he said.

Clark recalled that the federal courts last March declared ALCOA a monopoly in violation of the anti-trust laws, but did not recommend dissolution because of the uncertainty as to conditions that would prevail in the industry after the post-war sale of government-owned plants. Most of these have been operated by ALCOA.

Declaring that competition was the key to lower aluminum prices and more jobs in an expanding industry, Clark said that independent operators would be unable to overcome the "special privileges" and advantages which ALCOA had accumulated "during a half century of monopoly."

"The only solution lies in the split-up of ALCOA into a number of competing companies," he said. "Prompt action is imperative. . . inaction would continue to promote monopoly."

STRIKE EPIDEMIC SHOWS FAILURE OF PREPARATION

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17—Labor observers believed today that the sudden outburst of strikes in reconverting industries may force President Truman to hasten the recommended reorganization of government labor services.

Schwollenbach suggested to the president five weeks ago that his department be strengthened and be given jurisdiction over independent labor agencies. No action has yet been taken.

The sudden epidemic of strikes, highlighted by strife in the automobile industry, found Schwollenbach's department, the War Labor Board and the National Labor Relations Board obviously ill-prepared to cope with their first big bottleneck in reconversion.
